CHECKLIST OF BOOKS IN PRINT BY MONTANANS OR ABOUT MONTANA as of June 1958

Compiled by the Montana State Library Extension Service, South and Middlesex, Missoula, Montana, with the assistance of Miss Virginia Walton, Librarian, Historical Society of Montana

In two parts

Part I: Books about Montana

Part II: Books that have no special bearing on Montana but whose authors are currently living in Montana or regularly spend part of the year in Montana

EXPLANATION

This "checklist" is designed to fill the needs of Montana librarians who want to enlarge their Montana collections. Books included, to the best of our knowledge, were in print at the time the list was compiled or are in publication as indicated.

We make no pretensions as to the list's completeness. We have not had time for the painstaking research that it would take to compile a fully complete list of this type. However, we have tried to make it reasonably complete for trade items especially about Montana and have also added general books about Montana, other books by Montanans and any of the more elusive items that have come to our attention. We have omitted federal and state documents and all publications of the Montana State University system other than those for sale by the Montana State University press. We hope later to issue a selected list of titles in those categories of especial usefulness to Montana librarians. With the exception of such titles, we will welcome having omissions called to our attention so that we may include them in a possible future revision.

In the first section we have listed books specifically about Montana and books about the West that have a substantial number of specific references to Montana or Montanans. We have also listed books, especially fiction, by Montana authors that have a general western background even though not specifically about Montana, with the thought that the author doubtless drew on his or her knowledge of Montana when writing them. Books by "Montana authors" have been starred in Part I. The term "Montana author" is in this case a rather elastic one. It refers to any author currently living in Montana or who has spent sufficient time in Montana that we can consider his or her stay made some impact on his or her subsequent writing.

In the interest of conserving space we have kept information given for each title as brief as possible. We have affixed library classification numbers as a clue to the subject and scope of the book. We have also added symbols, as follows, to further indicate the use of the book: Ref - principal use will be reference; HS - appropriate for high school use, which in some cases is broken down into junior high school use (jr HS) and senior high school use (sr HS). Other than this, the title or a very brief descriptive annotation speaks for the subject of the book.
